GRANULAWN, INC.

YOUR FIRST LAWN APPLICATION

Today, a granular fertilizer and pre-emergent were applied to promote spring color and balanced growth. The pre-emergent will help control grassy weeds such as crabgrass, foxtail, and spurge, but not broadleaf weeds such as dandelions, thistles, ground ivy and clover. These weeds will be treated if present. Due to the chemistry of the product we applied today, you can still rake, mow, aerate and clean up the turf without harming the product. It will only start to breakdown as the soil temperatures rise. If you are able to water in the product, go ahead, however it is not critical at this time, (a big advantage with our granular program). Pets and children are safe to be on the lawn as soon as the application is completed.

SPRING AERATION - SAVE 15%

A spring aeration is highly suggested in order to reduce soil compaction and opens up the soil for air, nutrients, and water, especially with the high content of clay found in most areas. The grass roots do not grow down into the soil, but across in the thatch zone. As this happens the lawn can become more and more susceptible to heat, disease, and insect damage. The aeration can help lessen compaction and is recommended in both the spring and fall for best results. Spring aerations generally take place between the months of March and April.

LAWN TIPS

Begin watering the lawn right after the spring thaw. This will help the lawn come out of dormancy quicker to promote better growth.

Now is the best time to get your mower blade sharpened and ready for the season. Mowing with a sharpened blade will help stimulate growth and allow quicker greening up in the lawn. Mowing will also help remove debris and the dormant brown tips off the grass.

If disease was a lawn problem last year, consider our granular Preventative Fungicide Program—it works!
